DIRECT TALK HERE TO CUBA

New Cable, Marvels of Which Are Explained By Mr. Harder, Makes It Possible For Business Man To Speak To Havana As Easily As New York.

Kingston is now within speaking distance of Havana, Cuba.

By means of three new submarine telephone cables recently put into service between Key West, Fla. and the Cuban capital, and affording a direct telephone connection with the New York Telephone Company's wires in New York city, it is now possible for the business man of Kingston to call up the island republic and inquire, for instance, about those things which have been Volsteaded out of the United States, or to conduct other business of greater or less importance.

The new Havana cables contain the longest submarine telephone lines in the world. Although the American ends of the wires are technically at Key West, two direct circuits have been established over the long lines of the Bell System between New York and Havana, so that when the long distance operator "plugs in" at New York, a signal lamp flashes in Havana immediately. The voice travels between the two cities in the space of one-fifteenth of a second, and the long distance conversation is carried on with the same ease and success as local telephone calls.

Several years of intensive study and development to build a cable providing such transmission facilities preceded the actual using of the submarine lines. It is 100 land miles from Key West to Havana, but it took 120 miles of cable to cover the distance. The floor of the ocean had to be mapped just as accurately for this job as the mapping of the north woods section of New York. One of the difficulties was traversing a submarine mountain range, which has an altitude equivalent to the Alleghany Mountains. The cable line, however, crosses these mountains much the same as a land line would cross a terra firma range, except, of course, there are no poles. The depth of the ocean is one mile at the farthest downward point, which is just outside of Havana harbor. From Key West, a city built on the coral reefs, the telephone line had previously been carried to the mainland on the viaduct of the famed Florida East Coast Railway.

Each cable contains a single copper conductor, which is protected and insulated by coverings of gutta percha, a continuous copper tape, and jute wrapping and steel armor wires on the outside. The cable itself is hardly larger than a man's wrist, while the total weight of the three cable lines is about 3,500,000 pounds. At the deepest point in the ocean it is estimated that the pressure on the cable is about one ton to the square inch.

Laying the cable proved a spectacular task. The lengthy strands were carried aboard the cable ship in great tanks filled with salt water to prevent deterioration of the gutta percha insulation from the effects of the air and climate. While the cable was being reeled out, the ship sometimes carried suspended in the water more than a mile of cable, which, of itself, was somewhat weighty. The ship had to have power enough to hold a true course even with the cable suspended, so that it could hold rigidly to the chosen course.

Many firms have already found the new telephone line a remarkable help in expediting the transaction of business, according to Mr. Harder, local commercial manager of the New York Telephone Company, as may be witnessed by the heavy traffic which has gone over the cables since their opening. Making a long distance call to Cuba from Kingston, Mr. Harder declares, is done in the same manner as making a long distance call to Buffalo or New York city, the circuits are set up with equal speed, and conversation is equally successful.

LATER SCHEDULE IN TRAVEL GUIDE

The Chamber of Commerce announces that a paster will be placed in the June edition of the Kingston Transportation Guide so as to include in the railroad schedules improved summer service which will a little later go into effect on the West Shore Railroad.

General distribution of these guides will, therefore, be deferred for about ten days until these changes are available.

The Chamber will, meanwhile, be glad to furnish the original copy without the paster to anyone requesting it with the understanding that it will be replaced shortly by a copy containing a paster covering the summer rail changes.

This guide includes rail, boat, ferry and auto bus schedules in and out of Kingston.

Still Need New Rag Clothes.

The committee having in charge the collection of old clothes for the Near East Relief reports that they have already nearly a truck load but it is the desire to have a full load to be sent to New York. The truck will leave the armory early Wednesday morning and all who have not already contributed are requested to send in their gifts to the armory before Tuesday night. If they cannot send them and will call the armory on the telephone some one will call for them.

SUMMERLIN'S TALKS GO ON

With Mexican Officials—Residents Of Mexican Capital Much Worked Up Over Situation—Not Grave Says General Calles.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, June 11.—Public opinion in the Mexican capital was much calmer today, after almost a week of excitement, bordering on a "war scare." There were symptoms of universal hope that a basis may be found without much further delay upon which Mexico and the United States will build a new relationship devoid of the bones of contention that have endangered peace between the two nations in the past.

The Mexican public generally appears inclined to support the attitude of President Obregon, which is summed up in his refusal to sign the protocol of the proposed treaty with the United States prior to recognition of his government by Washington.

General Calles, minister of the interior, reflected the general new optimism today when he stated that the situation was by no means grave as regards the republic's relations with the United States.

George T. Summerlin, American charge here, conferred today with Albert J. Pani, secretary for foreign affairs, and the conference gave rise to the belief that he may have presented a new note from Washington.

Prominent members of the Mexican senate joined in the endorsement of Obregon's policy and expressed the view that the United States should abide by the treaty of Guadalupe, signed in 1848 after the Mexican war.

Other officials, representing a less conciliatory element, voiced the opinion that the big powers of the world do not, as in former times, resort to arbitration if they can force their will upon the smaller nations. Those who represent this view try to back up their arguments with the statements "that if the United States desires a friendly treaty, it should not demand or dictate it, but take the course of friendly give and take negotiations."

GOV'T TO GET RID OF SHIPS

Administration Decides To Let Private Enterprise Keep Flag on Seas If Possible—Millions on Millions Lost Through Enterprise Must Be Paid By People.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 11.—The United States government is going to get out of the shipping business just as fast as is consistently possible.

Already having suffered financial losses that mount high into the millions in the operation of the government fleet, facing a net loss of nearly three billions in the liquidation of the shipping board's affairs, and with the whole shipping situation a prolific source of criticism and condemnation in congress, administration leaders have decided that the best thing to do for the government and for the furtherance of the nation's mercantile interests generally is to get out of the business, bag and baggage, and leave to private enterprise the task of keeping the American flag on the seven seas.

This will be the policy laid down by President Harding himself next week when he meets with the new shipping board for the first time to take an inventory of the situation. The board will organize on Monday and on Tuesday it will meet. The chief executive to hear an outline of policy.

The length of time necessary to get the government out of the shipping business with the least financial loss possible is problematical. Some of President Harding's advisors think it will take two years, others are of the opinion the job cannot be accomplished under three.

In any event it is not expected that the new chairman, Albert D. Lasker of Chicago, will serve out the six year term to which he has been appointed.

The manner in which the liquidation of the government's venture into the shipping business is to be accomplished is the problem that is proving a knotty one for the administration.

Hundreds of ships constructed under the stress of war emergency are tied up at wharves or are riding at anchor in the ports of the Atlantic and Pacific. The steel ships are rusting and the wooden ones are rotting under disuse. The guarding and maintenance alone costs the government nearly half a billion dollars a year.

The ships represent a net investment to the government of between $3,000,000,000 and $4,000,000,000. At the present price of tonnage it would be difficult to realize more than $750,000,000 in a forced sale, if indeed that amount could be obtained.

This enormous difference must ultimately be charged off on the government's books to war expense, and the American people must make up their minds to swallow it, according to the consensus of opinion that has been gathered by the president and his advisers.

The liquidation will be a slow process, and destined to extract the last possible penny for the benefit of the government, it was said today.

But the end is in sight—the government, under the administration policy, is going to get out of the shipping business and stay out.

K. H. S. SENIORS' LAST ASSEMBLY

Following the long established custom, the outgoing Senior class had full charge of the regular morning assembly at the high school Friday morning.

Prof. Harry P. Dodge was present to take charge of the singing and after the singing of the opening hymn, President Shoemaker of the athletic association presented the medals and ribbons to the students who made the best records in the recently held state-wide athletic meet.

President Purcell of the Senior class and Prof. Lewis, also a number of the class of 1921, sat on the platform. Prof. Lewis made a few apt remarks and spoke of the honor which the class had bestowed upon him by dedicating this year's Maroon to him. Several songs were sung by the student body after which the Senior class sang the Senior song, "Hail and Farewell." Then Cheer Leader Tom Rowland took charge for the time being and the whole student body gave two thunderous cheers for the class. The singing of the school song brought the exercises to a close and it was with heavy hearts that the members of the class filed out of the auditorium in which they had been present every morning for four long, but happy years.

The 1921 Maroon is now on sale. The sale of this cherished book began Friday afternoon at the high school. The Maroon may be purchased at O'Reilly's book store on Broadway or at Forsyth and Davis's store on Wall street. Besides these two places, the books will be on sale at the high school office any day next week or by application to the business manager at the high school.

This year's publication is one of the best, if not the best that has ever been put out at the high school. It contains a detailed account of everything that has taken place at the school in the past year. The book will be interesting to members of the Alumni and also to anyone interested in the activities of the high school students.

Washington, June 11.—Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the navy, whose difficulties with Rear Admiral William S. Sims, made naval history during the Wilson administration, was asked by the International News Service to express an opinion on the latest escapade of the voluble admiral in London.

Today this message was received from former Secretary Daniels at his home in Raleigh, N. C.:

AQUITANIA, USING OIL FUEL, WINS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 11.—Oil won the trans-Atlantic race against coal today when the Cunard liner Aquitania docked after making the trip from Liverpool in six days, beating the Mauretania, of the same line. Both left Liverpool a week ago today almost at the same time.

The Aquitania burns oil, the Mauretania coal.

It was the first time that the relative merits were tested in such a "blue ribbon" contest. Cunard officials discountenanced the idea of a race, but the captains admittedly made the voyage a friendly speed rivalry and shipping magnates and sportsmen bet considerable sums on the outcome. The Mauretania, as luck—or maybe the inferior coal she was forced to use on account of the British coal strike—would have it, made the slowest trip in her history. She won't dock until Monday some time. She had to step over at Cherbourg for coal. The Mauretania still holds the world record of four days ten hours and 41 minutes, made before the war, at an average speed of 26.06 knots. The Aquitania's best average is 22 knots.

Missionary Society Met.

The Standard Bearer Missionary Society of the Clinton Avenue Church held its last meeting Friday evening, June 10. Although a new society they have 25 members. They decided to send Miss Beatrice Kelsey to the Summer School of Missions at Northfield, Mass. Miss Ruby Cuse gave a sketch of her life at Northfield last year. On next Wednesday, in honor of the twentieth anniversary of the general society, they will hold a birthday picnic at which each girl is requested to bring 20 cents for a birthday endowment fund. The girls who were to the meeting and social were Mary Kyer, Emma Hotaling, Fay Pettibone, Bessie Robinson, Lillian Heath, Anna Taylor, Florence Fraser, Nettie Kelder, Helen Jones, Charlotte Mericle, Beatrice Kelsey, Sylvia Fredericks, Frances Powell, Marguerite, Edna and Beatrice Lord, Mrs. Clayton Smith and Ruby Cure. After the meeting light refreshments were served.

KABERS REACH CLEVELAND JAIL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 11.—Worn out by long hours of grilling by city and county police, Mrs. Eva Catherine Kaber and her daughter, Marian McArdle, jointly indicted for the murder of Daniel F. Kaber, husband and stepfather, are fitfully sleeping at the county jail here this morning, following their arrival in Cleveland from New York just before midnight last night.

Important admissions were obtained from mother and daughter at the long examination at Central Police Station, which ended only as dawn began to break. This questioning began upon their arrival and was only interrupted long enough to permit of the taking of photographs for the police records.

At this examination mother and daughter were confronted with the woman arrested in Sandusky Wednesday morning, and statements damaging both to herself, Mrs. Kaber and Miss McArdle were obtained from her.

Declared by Prosecutor Edward C. Stanton to be the woman who supplied the arsenic which failed to act with sufficient celerity to suit those plotting the death of the rich publisher, she admitted that she furnished "medicine" to select patients.

The woman said that Mrs. Kaber visited her and told her of the "bad habits" of her husband some months before his murder in 1919, and on this occasion she supplied her with a potion that she had brewed especially to cure "erring or brutal husbands."

It was at a house on Norman avenue, Cleveland, she asserted that Mrs. Kaber told her and an unnamed man that she wanted "Dan put out of the way." She offered the man $3,000 for the job, the Sandusky woman said, but the man wanted $5,000.

Mrs. Kaber here interposed a vigorous denial. Her daughter also made vigorous objections to many of the statements made by the Sandusky suspect.

In fact Marian, throughout the examination, acted as her mother's counsel.

The positions of the two seemed to have changed, and the girl took the lead.

It was only a few moments after arriving at police headquarters that the three women faced each other.

"Do you know this woman?" Mrs. Kaber was asked.

"Tell them the truth, mother," Marian admonished.

"Yes. I've seen her," answered Mrs. Kaber in a voice that was barely audible.

"How frequently?"

"Several times."

"That's enough now, mother," the daughter again admonished.

"You've told them you know her. Don't say another word."

It was thus throughout the long grilling.

Mother and daughter seemed more like two sisters drawn together in adversity, with the younger, if anything, the stronger character.

Mother and daughter will not meet the third member of the strange triangle until after their arraignment this morning, it was today announced at the county jail.

"Grandma" Brickel's hope that she might be freed from jail before the arrival of "her girl," Marian, was not granted, her relatives not having been able to raise the $5,000 bail required.

Mrs. Kaber's wrist, which she slashed in an attempt at suicide in New York, pained her considerably this morning and the jail physician expressed fear that infection might set in. The bandages were removed and the self-inflicted wound again dressed.

NEARLY $200 FROM BIRTHDAY SUPPER

The last-of-the-season meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary was held at the Association Building on Friday afternoon, Mrs. Lockwood, the president, presiding. Mrs. W. N. Feeseenden led the devotional exercises.

It was reported that the Birthday Supper given this week netted the fine sum of $190.51, a greatly appreciated fact.

The following women were admitted into membership of the auxiliary: Mrs. Anna O. Smith, Mrs. Emmet Silkworth, Mrs. Loren Buley, Mrs. George N. Robbins.

It was voted to discontinue the auxiliary meetings during the months of July, August and September, so the next meeting will be held on the second Friday in October.

In addition to the business of the afternoon, Miss Elizabeth Bishop favored the ladies with a vocal solo and an encore number.

Pewley Enlarging Slip.

Improvements are under way at the slip at Poughkeepsie of the Poughkeepsie and Highland Ferry Company. M. Edgar Pewley, dock builder and contractor of Kingston, is doing the work. It has been found that the new ferry, the Governor Winthrop, was a little too large to fit comfortably into the slip, consequently work to widen the slip is being done. Repairs to its sides are also under way. The work is only temporary, as it has already been stated that the ferry company expects to purchase a new electrically driven ferry within a short time for the new ferry is put in operation, a new bridge, remodelling to the ferry slip, a new slip for the new boat, and remodelling of the waiting station and offices will take place.

KEGLER TRACES TAX HISTORY

At St. John's Mens' Club Friday evening Lewis Kegler, Sr., of Washington avenue, delivered a talk on "Taxation," at the final assemblage of the club until fall.

Mr. Kegler, a resident of Kingston for forty-five years, pointed out that when a physician was called in to diagnose a case he went to the seat of the disease. He would take his hearers back to incorporation of the city. The mistake there was to include too much territory, making Kingston cover as much ground as Poughkeepsie and Newburgh combined. This has been a burden on the taxpayer ever since. Next a water system was desired and the plant of the Kingston Water Company was purchased. Immediately a lot of pipes had to be fixed and extensions made. Sewers followed and were placed here and there instead of connecting by a trunk line to the Rondout creek. In the Second and Ninth wards the sewers cost $180,000. This was shortsighted and it would have been far better to have had a trunk line and emptied in the Rondout instead of uptown and Jacob's Valley. Next the streets had to be topdressed. There are so many it costs $100,000 for repairs, handling ashes, etc., each year. The topdressing formerly was done by ordinary limestone which would disintegrate each year and be wasted. All these have gone to burden the taxpayers' pocketbook. The paving of Broadway with second hand brick was a mistake for which we have paid dearly.

Mr. Kegler did not criticize any previous administration or the present one. He said he felt all our officials had been efficient and honest. The schools had been run economically and with credit to the city. But the taxpayers should take a greater interest in public affairs and politics. This has caused mistakes in the past which should be avoided in the future. The taxpayers should appear before the city's representatives more frequently, acquaint them with their wishes and better results will follow.

A rising vote of thanks was given Mr. Kegler and an open forum and discussion was held in which Edwin Shader, Mr. Osgood, Mr. Heiser and others took part.

WYGANT ESTATE WORTH $25,000

And Perhaps $30,000 Testifies Rusk —Last Will Gave Wife Residue After $21,000 Had Been Paid Out —Boarder Paid No Board For Five Years.

The Wygant will contest case was not completed Friday afternoon and an adjournment was taken until Monday afternoon when the case will be continued. John Rusk of Marlborough, attorney, fruit grower, insurance broker and real estate broker, was called Friday afternoon and testified to the values of the various pieces of property at the time of Mr. Wygant's death. He placed a value of between $25,000 and $30,000 on the property owned by deceased at the time of his death. According to the will sums amounting to $21,000 were left to Mrs. Wygant. One of the provisions of the will was that all real estate be sold.

Mrs. Wygant was called and testified as to the various pieces of property which were owned by her husband. Since his death she had received the rents from the property. She testified that she was married to Mr. Wygant 17 years ago and had come to live at the Wygant home in Marlborough where she has since resided.

For about five years a Mr. Wickham had been a boarder at the Wygant house, one of the witnesses testified. During that time he paid no board. On examination by Mr. Drinker it was brought out that Mr. Wickham was a "friend of the family."

The case will probably be completed early next week and sent to the jury. Court will convene at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

SHOE BUSINESS VERY PROFITABLE

Each Dealer From Tanner To Retailer Adds Generous Percentage For His Part In Bringing Raw Hide To Consumer As Footwear, Says Federal Report—Further Decline in Prices Justified.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 11.—Large profits, taken by every one in the shoe business, from the tanner down to the retailer, were disclosed today by the Federal Trade Commission in a report to congress.

The trade commission's report was in response to a congressional resolution directing an investigation of the high shoe prices which prevailed during 1918 and 1919.

"Earnings of 89 tanners of shoe leather, whose production in 1918 was about 65 per cent of the total production, were 13.1 per cent on investment in 1918," the report states, "and 29.8 per cent in 1919. Of these tanners the earnings of 22 companies tanning kid leathers, with production in 1918 about 70 per cent of the total kid leather production, were greatest, averaging 26.8 per cent on investment in 1918 and 81 per cent in 1919. Earnings of 341 shoe manufacturers with output in 1919 representing about 62 per cent of the total output shown in the census of 1919, were 16.2 per cent on investment in 1918 and 29.8 per cent in 1919. Earnings of 32 typical shoe wholesalers and jobbers averaged about 22 per cent on investment in 1918 and about 31 per cent in 1919; earnings of 46 typical shoe retailers averaged about 25 per cent in 1918 and about 32 per cent in 1919. These earnings, like those of tanners and shoe manufacturers resulted from wide margins of profit taken on each shoe sold. The increased earnings in 1919 were due to the fact that selling prices increased by greater amounts and percentages than did costs."

While the high shoe prices were largely attributed to large profits, the report of the commission declares that the whole situation was "the result of abnormal conditions and supply and demand arising from the war which were both economic and psychological."

The onward march of prices and profits was finally ended by the consumers themselves with the "buyers' strike" of 1920, the trade commission finds.

"The failure of leather prices and shoe prices to decline as extensively as did hide prices after the buyer's strike, the commission finds, "may be attributed to the fact that other costs had not declined as much as raw material costs, and to an apparent tendency to base selling prices on actual, rather than replacement costs—a policy inconsistent with that applied in 1919 while prices were advancing."

Many who gained large profits in 1919 felt the wrath of the public in 1920, when the consumer failed to buy, and small profits and in some cases even losses were chalked up beside the large profits of the preceding year.

While the commission's investigation closed with the year 1920 it held that present prices of hides and conditions existent in the industry "justify an expectation of still further declines in the quoted prices of leather and of shoes."

YEAR'S PROGRESS AT SYNAGOGUE

Friday evening being a year since Dr. Bernard M. Kaplan came to this city, the rabbi at the Sabbath evening service reviewed the work of the year in Temple Emanuel and expressed satisfaction with the progress achieved. He thanked publicly Mrs. B. DUGAN A REAL LEADER OF MEN

The naming of George Dugan, former District Governor of Rotary, to address the Chamber of Commerce Membership Workers dinner, Monday evening, 6:30 at the Y. M. C. A. means that every campaign worker will enjoy a rare privilege. Rotarians who have heard George Dugan before are delighted at the news of his visit for they know that he has no superior on oratorical ability or in the profound sincerity with which, in Rotary, in Chamber of Commerce work, in his profession and in every matter with which he deals, he practises himself the stirring gospel of community service which he preaches.

He has never faced an audience that he has failed to move or that has not gone away after hearing him carrying the sense of a new friendship for a real man as well as a deep and lasting inspiration and conviction. A great leader of men is the universal verdict about George Dugan.

The chairman of the commerce campaign committee is exceedingly gratified that President Watts of the Kingston Rotary Club has secured George for Monday's meeting.

STRANDED IN A STRANGE LAND

Early Friday evening four Portuguese applied at police headquarters for aid in getting back to New York city. They spoke broken English but from what they said they had gone to Grand Gorge to work on the tunnel for the New York board of water supply, but were unable to do tunnel work and were paid off with 65 cents each Friday. As they had used their entire stock of cash to get to the job they were without funds. Chief of Police J. Allan Wood this morning made arrangements to send the four back to New York city on one of the Central Hudson Line boats. They spent the night at the city hall.

G. O. P. FACTIONS DELAY PEACE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 11.—Behind the threatened deadlock between senate and house Republican leaders on the Knox-Porter peace resolution is a revolt of Republican members of the house foreign affairs committee against what they term the attempted domination of the Republican members of the senate foreign relations committee, it was declared today.

The long-promised termination of the technical state of war between the United States and the Central Powers is being further delayed while the dispute between the Republicans on the two committees over the most practical way to re-establish the United States on a peace basis continues to rage with little or no prospect of immediate settlement.

Both sides claim to possess the president's tacit approval. Both admit however, they are not quite sure of his attitude, except that he has signified a desire that the senate and house try themselves to find a way to bring about peace. House Republican leaders openly proclaim that the senate must keep on its own preserves, and that while they recognize the prerogatives of the senate foreign relations committee the house foreign affairs committee must no longer be considered a mere rubber stamp in the moulding of international problems by the senate committee.

With the senate not in session today, the house engaged in what promised to be an all day wrangle over the Porter resolution intended by its supporters as a sub for the Knox measure.

2. Do young salmon feed on those that die after spawning?

3. Does the hoop snake exist?

Answers in Monday's Nature Notes.

Answers to Previous Questions.

1. What different kinds of insects pass the larval stage in wood?

The larvae of certain beetles are characteristically found in wood, both decaying and healthy. Metallic wood borers, Buprestidae, whose larvae are called flat-headed, are an example. Larvae of stag beetles live in decaying trunks and stumps, the larvae of long horned beetles, Cerambycidae tunnel in locust, hickory and sugar maple trees.

2. How long do goldfish live?

This depends decidedly on the living conditions. There is an authentic record of a goldfish that lived seventeen years. Eight years is an average in a scientifically managed aquarium. Fish kept by amateurs often live but a few months, or even a few weeks.

3. Is the mocking bird rated high as a songster?

The mocking bird undoubtedly possesses the greatest range of mere talent among New World songsters, and the most varied executive ability, though he never approaches the serene beauty of the hermit thrush. He never fails to surprise and delight one at each hearing and awakes admiration, though the first emotion he arouses is incredulity. That so many and such various notes should proceed from one throat is a marvel.

BLOOMINGTON.

Bloomington, June 11.—The little folks' entertainment, which was held on Wednesday evening, June 1, at the Bloomington Hall, under the direction of Miss Sophia Schmidthons of Kingston, was a success both socially and financially. Miss Schmidthons deserves great credit for drilling the children and carrying on the entertainment. The teachers of the Sunday school wish to thank her and all those who came out from Kingston and who took part or helped in any way to make it a success. The proceeds for the Sunday school amounted to $30.27.

On last Sunday morning the Lord's Supper was administered in the church and the Rev. Mr. Polhemus took a new member in, Mrs. Ransom Krom, and baptized two children. The services were well attended.

Mrs. Ella DeGraff, with her daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. David Conkling, and little son, motored on Thursday morning to their home in New York city.

The regular monthly meeting of the Missionary Society met on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Ransom Krom.

Mrs. Frank Straub from Rosendale spent Wednesday with her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Krom, who are both in poor health at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Warner and mother entertained friends from Kingston on Tuesday evening.

Seymour Warner is painting his house. Charles Richard and Fred Randegger are helping him do the work.

Mr. Kerber is slowly improving at this writing under the care of Dr. L. G. Rymph.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Van Buren have sold their Ford car and expect to have a new one in the near future.

Don't forget the entertainment which will be held on Thursday evening, June 16, at the church by home talent. Tickets, 25 cents. Refreshments after entertainment.

The KITCHEN CABINET

Faintly as tolls the evening chime
Our voices keep tune and our oars keep time.
Soon as the woods on the shore look dim,
We'll sing at St. Ann's our parting hymn.
Row, brother, row, the stream runs fast,
The rapids are near and the daylight's past.

A FEW GOOD SALADS.

There is no salad so well liked as a crisp green lettuce with a good highly-seasoned salad dressing.

Kidney Bean Salad.—Cut one bunch of celery into small pieces; add one large onion, also cut fine, ten small sweet pickles cut in small pieces and one can of kidney beans. Serve with the following dressing: One-half cupful each of vinegar and sugar, one egg beaten well, teaspoonful of mustard mixed with one-half teaspoonful of salt and a few dashes of cayenne; mix and cook together until thick.

Banana Delight Salad.—Take one-half pound box of marshmallows, one cupful of whipping cream, five bananas. Whip the cream, add the bananas sliced and the marshmallows cut in quarters; a few tablespoonfuls of diced pineapple is an improvement and if the marshmallows are soaked for an hour in pineapple juice the flavor is greatly improved. This salad may be served on head lettuce garnished with a cherry.

Egyptian Salad.—Cut firm, ripe tomatoes in halves, having as many as there are people to serve. Remove the pulp and put into a mixing bowl with equal parts of chopped cabbage and one-half the amount of chopped celery. Season with salt, pepper and sugar. Mix the ingredients and fill the halves of the tomatoes, after mixing well with a good mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce.

Pear Salad.—Take halves of canned pears, arrange on head lettuce and garnish with balls of cream cheese seasoned with chopped pimentoes. Make a dressing of the pear juice, a good oil and a seasoning of vinegar, salt and pinch of sugar.

A salad which may be used on potato, lettuce, or in fact almost any salad mixture is Thousand Isle dressing, using any chopped vegetable in a mayonnaise dressing.

Regiment Proud of Long Service.

The Third infantry, the oldest regiment of our army, which dates from 1784, has developed its arms to show its early service in Mexico. One interesting device used by this regiment is a baton crossed with an oblique bayonet back of the shield. The baton which figures prominently in the regiment's history was made from the flagstaff of the capitol of the City of Mexico and was taken when the city was captured. It is still one of the most highly prized possessions of the regiment.

Zoological Specimens Scarce.

The growing scarcity of specimens in every department of zoology has led to the setting apart of large game preserves in the wilds of Africa and putting them in charge of experts.

Preaching at Eddyville.

There will be preaching by the pastor of the M. E. Church, Eddyville, Sunday morning at 10:30 (daylight saving time). Sunday school 11:45, R. Comfort, pastor.

NEW "DRY" FIGHT IN CONGRESS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 11.—A fight between the "wets" and "drys," begun through moves to amend and make more rigid the provisions of the Volstead law, threatens now to involve both sides of the Capitol in a whiskey row.

The rum battle has many angles. The biggest fight develops out of Congressman Volstead's drive to tighten the "screws" on whiskey as a medical agent and to outlaw beer.

Other phases of the whiskey embroglio, grew out of vigorous moves by certain "wet" leaders to obtain "liberal" amendments to the dry law. One of these, fathered by Congressman Edmunds, of Pennsylvania, would allow American ships to carry liquors aboard. Mr. Edmunds's proposal invites strong support from senators and congressmen. Shipping interests urge its passage on the ground that American ships are suffering competition with foreign liners. Passengers are taking passage on foreign owned boats, because liquors are sold and served on them.

Verbal pyrotechnics will come soon in debates over beer. The treasury is holding up regulations which would authorize manufacture and sale of medicinal beer. Congressman Volstead claims Congress, by an overwhelming majority, will declare been is not a medicine, and will specifically bar it. Volstead's fight is the result of an opinion by former Attorney-General Palmer, holding beer sales by druggists to be legal.

Breweries, drug manufacturers and leading anti-prohibition organizations have entered strong protests against the Volstead measure. The protests against the Edmunds ship measure are less numerous, although it is strongly opposed by the Anti-Saloon League.

Few will deny that in Congress there now exists greater support for light wines and beer. The real mystery is whether or not new accessions to the beer and wine standard will vote as they drink or think. In all wet and dry contests at the capitol the votes on liquor questions have shown, invariably, a large percentage of "wets" lining up with "dry" advocates, upon measures to clamp down the lid tighter upon the rum traffic.

The "wets" in the new skirmishes may be somewhat appeased by the fact that the new Volstead bill leaves wine as a medicinal drink, which may be prescribed, along with whiskey and other "spirituous" liquors. It is probable, however, that when the finishing touches are put on the bill, before it comes to the president for his signature, it will contain many restrictions, limiting the freedom of doctors in prescribing wine for patients.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer has suggested that it should be permissible for physicians to prescribe wine in amounts equivalent in alcoholic content to whiskey allowed. Kramer figured that as patients are permitted to have three pints of whiskey a month, a just proportion of wine would be three gallons a month, gauged by its smaller content of alcohol.

The "drys" are aligned for a terrific attempt to jam their amendments through, and they freely predict they have enough votes to win. But the winning will come probably only after some spicy talkfests in both chambers, with a mixture of wrangling always to be expected in liquor debates.

Why the New Clerk Stayed.

"That new clerk of ours won't do," said the junior member.

"Why not?" asked the head of the firm.

"He was an hour late the first morning he came to work."

"I spoke to him about that. He said he overslept because he sat up until two o'clock in the morning writing out-of-town friends and relatives about what a splendid concern had given him a job. We need a quick thinker around here and I guess we'd better keep him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Why Smell Would Be Enough.

The young woman entered the grocery and approached the meat counter.

"Give me a nickel's worth of cheese," she said to the butcher.

"Why, lady, you won't get a smell for a nickel," the butcher replied, giving her a disgusted glance.

"That's all I want," was the triumphant answer, "it's for a mouse trap."—New York Evening Post.

ERZBERGER WELL HATED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Berlin, June 11.—The Erzberger tax-dodging case, like the celebrated Dreyfus case of France, shows signs of developing into a factional feud threatening to extend over years. Although it is faced with the difficult problems of reparation, of disarming the unwilling Bavarians, and of running a bankrupt nation, the Reichstag prefers to spend much of its time in the lobbies discussing whether or not Matthias Erzberger is a tax-dodger.

Matthias Erzberger is the one man, more than any other who is responsible for the Germans signing the Versailles Treaty. As a result he is hated by the group of pan-Germans which had had expectations of signing a far different treaty, with clauses making Belgium a commercial colony of Germany. A former secretary of the treasury under the Emperor, Karl Helfferich, was the leader in the movement to disgrace Erzberger and drive him from political life.

In January, 1920, while Erzberger was Minister of Finance, his tax return certificates were stolen from the Finance Ministry; the material in them soon began to appear in the royalistic press. Erzberger immediately ordered an investigation of his tax payments and withdrew from the post as Minister of Finance. He left office with Noske at the time of the Kapp revolution.

For the past year Erzberger has been one of the powers behind the cabinet—and, although he lived in the strictest retirement, he has been taken into counsel on many of the important crises through which the government has passed. His Socialist and Centrum friends wish him to return to active political life and are seeking to reinstate him in the cabinet.

They accuse the Monarchist group of having made Erzberger the sacrifice of a political intrigue, and by means of interpellations in the Reichstag and discussions in the lobbies are attempting to make the Erzberger case a boomerang against the Royalists.

The Centrum party claims that its chief not only is not a tax-dodger, but that he overpaid his taxes and cite the court decision in evidence. Erzberger was neither fined nor ordered to pay up back taxes.

The political fight over Erzberger is of the greatest importance to the Allies for the reason that if Erzberger is finally politically cleared, he will probably return to the cabinet and the Entente will have the assistance in the fulfillment of the treaty of one of the political group through whose influence the treaty was signed.

SMILE SELDOM MAKES ENEMY

Why It Would Pay Any Person to Cultivate a Cheerful Disposition and Demeanor.

If I were to be born into this world again and had the choice of my endowments I should arrange very carefully about my smile, writes "Alpha of the Plough," in the London News. There is nothing so irresistible as the right sort of smile. It is better than the silver spoon in the mouth. It will carry you anywhere and win you anything, including the silver spoon. It disarms your enemies and makes them forget that they have a grudge against you.

"I have a great many reasons for disliking you," said a public man to a friend of mine the other day, "but when I am with you I can never remember what they are." It was the patch of sunshine that did for him. He could not preserve his hostility in the presence of the other's disarming smile and gay good humor. He just yielded up his sword and sunned himself in the pleasant weather that the other carried with him like an atmosphere.

Really first-rate smiles are singularly rare. Only rarely do we light upon the smile that is a revelation. Harry Lauder's smile is like a national institution or a natural element. It is plentiful enough to fill the world. It is a continual and abundant feast that requires neither words nor chorus, and when he laughs you can no more help feeling happy than he can.

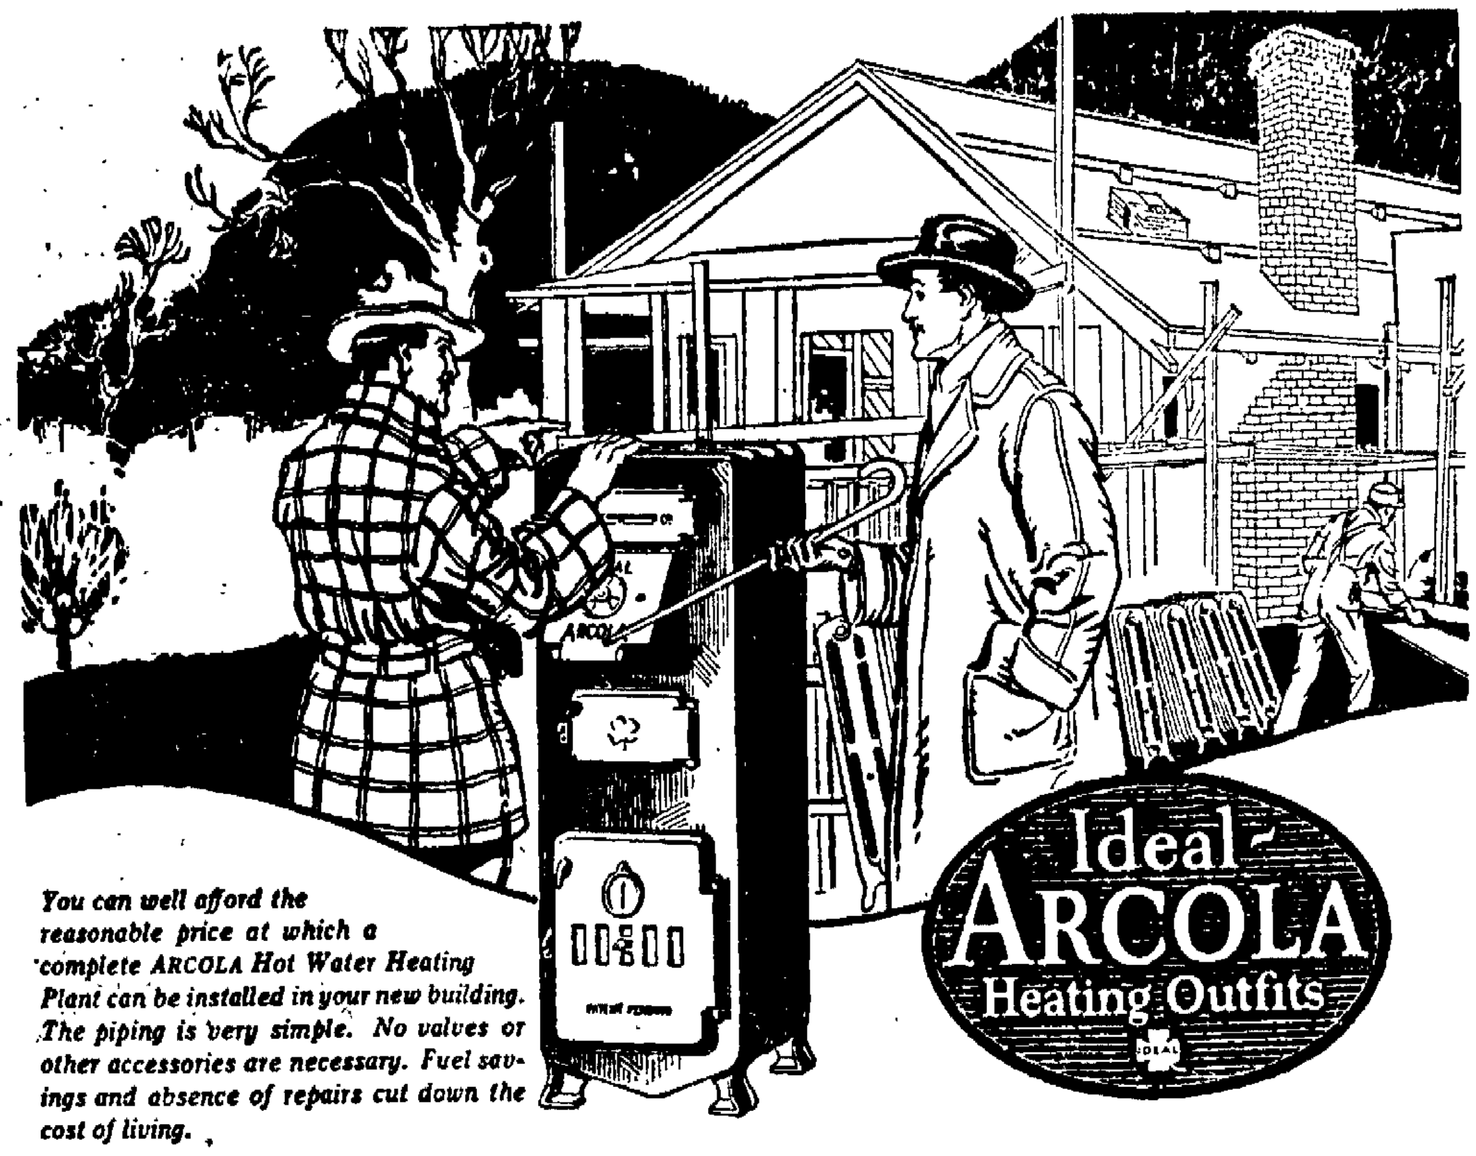

Why Red Ant Takes Prisoners.

The red ant is a typical soldier; he does nothing but fight. He has powerful jaws, and is generally strong, but he cannot get along without a slave to feed him. If he were left to feed himself he would die. He continually raids the nests of weaker insects and brings them back as prisoners, thus solving the servant problem and keeping himself well supplied with attendants. There is a species of ant in Australia called the bulldog ant, because of its extreme pugnacity. It will fight anything and everything. If one of these ants is accidentally cut in half, one half will actually fight the other half to the death.

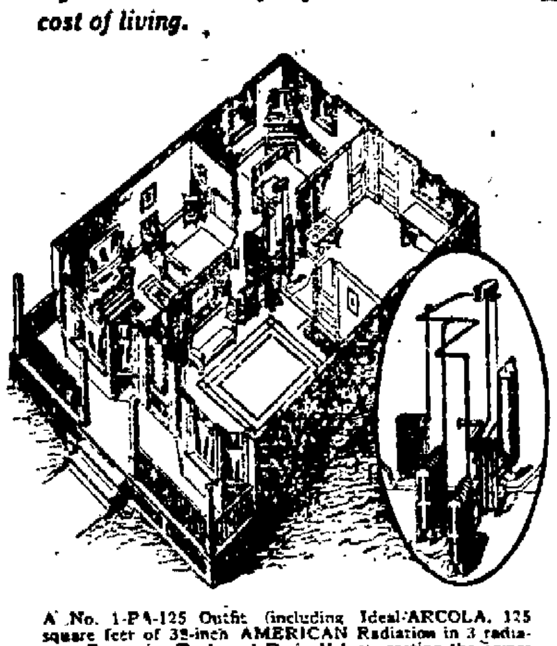

Why One Knocks on Wood.

There was at one time past a general belief that trees and humanity were allied in close bonds of union, and that certain trees had healing qualities. It was customary for a person afflicted with disease to take a woolen string of three colors, and with his right hand tie his left loosely to the limb of a tree, then slip it out and hasten homeward without casting a glance back, the belief being that the disease was transferred to the tree by touching it. Thus from a tree it has become common practice to touch any article made of wood to ward off misfortune.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JUNE 11, 1921

Modern naval competition is all the more costly because of the very short career it grants warships. No less than 113 obsolete ones have just been consigned to the sea scrap heap by the British Admiralty.

When a European ruler plays golf his caddy can be safely trusted to overpraise his game, but when 14-year-old Norris Wesler, who acted as caddy for President Harding in Pennsylvania the other day, was interviewed he hesitated, colored and said, "I've seen better."

Postmaster General Hays has issued an order restoring the second-class mailing privileges to the Milwaukee Leader and the New York Call, two notorious Socialist newspapers. The action must not be interpreted as expressing the sympathy of Mr. Hays for the matter appearing in those sheets. The Postmaster General takes the view that the papers should either be denied the use of the mails altogether or should have the same privileges as other periodicals. Mr. Burleson did not exclude them from the mails, but permitted them to circulate after paying the higher postal rates called for under a third class rating. Postmaster General Hays does not believe in such half-way measures. The papers are either good or bad, and should or should not be carried in the mails. Their future status will be determined by the sort of matter that they print.

RACE PREJUDICE.

The bloody race riot in Tulsa, Oklahoma, has been described as the worst in the history of the country, but there have been others in the Northwest in recent years which reached greater extremes of violence. The entire negro quarter of Tulsa was burned, but no public buildings were attacked and destroyed, as in some of the previous instances. Attorney General Daugherty is reported to have ordered an investigation, but the cause of the rioting both in this and in previous instances is obvious in advance of such inquiry. If a negro had attacked a negro woman, or a white man had attacked a white woman, there would have been no such violent disturbances and probably nothing but an arrest and a trial would have followed. But at Tulsa a negro attacked a white woman, other negroes armed themselves to protect him, white men seized torches as well as guns, and the inevitable followed.

What we call race prejudice is responsible for these violent outbreaks. The abnormal occupation of a common territory by two distinct races brings friction and breeds animosity. The climax comes when a serious inter-racial crime is committed and there follows something suggestive of an explosion of TNT. What is to be done about it in the case of the negroes, who are already among us in great numbers, nobody knows; but we can provide against added difficulties of a similar sort by rigidly restricting the influx of Japanese and other Asiatics. Africa is here, presumably to stay, but we can at least put up the bars against Asia.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Noting that when a Republican successor to Chief Justice White takes office the Supreme Court will contain six Republicans to three Democrats, the Springfield Republican says: "It has been recognized that the chief minority party must have substantial representation in the Supreme Court in order that the foundation of public confidence and faith in the American judiciary may be as broad and solid as possible. It was in order to keep this foundation unshaken that President Taft, finding Democratic representation on the supreme bench very low, nominated at least two Democratic Justices during his term of office. President Harding may be faced, sooner or later, by the same contingency."

It is true that party politics should not reach into the exalted atmosphere of our highest court, and that the chief minority party should have a sufficient representation to assure confidence in the Supreme Court by a very large part of the public. But the broad and broad view of this matter taken by Mr. Taft, himself a jurist of enlightened experience, is perhaps too much to expect of most Presidents. As a rule the party in power has taken advantage of the opportunity, if the opportunity came, to increase its representation in the Supreme Court. In this connection it is safe to say, however, that the appointment of Mr. Taft himself would give satisfaction to many Democrats as well as to members of his own party.

SOVIETS, TOO, TO FIGHT GREEKS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 11.—A new agreement calling for military cooperation against the Greeks has been signed between representatives of the Russian Soviet and the Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish Nationalist leader at Baku, according to a Central News dispatch from Athens today. The Soviets, the dispatch says, agree to send troops to Armenia and Angora and to supply war material to Kemal's forces. Cossacks are reported to have already crossed the Turkish frontier and to have entered the important fortified harbor city of Trebizond.

SENATE MINUS STYLE DICTATORS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, June 11.—The august and dignified United States senate is in a satorial quandary.

The senate had no official notification that summer is here, and there is doubt as to just when the senate may adorn itself with summer garments.

This perplexing situation, coming about through the failure of the voters of Colorado to return one Charles S. Thomas to the senate.

For several years the former Senator Thomas has been the official harbinger of summer for the senate—or perhaps his toupee has been the harbinger.

Thomas was a fair judge of weather, and when he was finally convinced that summer had arrived for a stay he entered the senate chamber minus his beautiful iron-gray toupee, and with his pink dome shining unblushingly. The dome continued to shine until the cold weather came, and then the toupee come out of the moth balls and covered the dome again.

The occasion of the stowing away of the Thomas toupee was always celebrated in the senate. Thomas frequently made a speech on warm weather and toupees, and he was always the subject of congratulations from his colleagues. After the toupee had disappeared members of the senate felt safe to sally forth in flannels, Palm Beach suits and minus their "galluses."

With the absence of the Thomas toupee and the approach of warm weather the senate now faces the serious question of determining for itself when the summer clothes shall come out.

This summer finds a senate greatly changed from that of the last heated season, and new summer styles are predicted. Henry Cabot Lodge will, as usual observe the arrival of summer by donning a starched white vest, and on real hot days he will even go so far as to wear light trousers. Senator Frank Brandegee of Connecticut will celebrate the warmest days by trotting out his two famous scarfs—one of most violent green and the other of burnt orange that speaks for itself. Thomas Heflin of Alabama will pay his tribute to "Old Sol" with a stiffly starched white duck suit and a boiled shirt that is equally stiffly starched. Senator Jim Watson of Indiana will wear his famous prison-striped flannel trousers, and his colleague, Harry New, will discard his black felt sombrero for one of Panamanian straw weave that is equally broad.

These sartorial effects are assured.

But what about the new senators? How are they going to greet summer? They have no fashion leader in the senate now and haven't had since Jim Ham Lewis took his gray silk sash, his salmon pink silk shirt and his silk suits back to Illinois.

Even the champion of the "galluses" and no vest—Asle Gronna of North Dakota—has gone.

Surely the troubles of the senate are many.

As for the house, "Uncle Joe" answers the question there. In May he begins dispensing with a buttoned "wescott," button by button. When the veteran legislator from Illinois finally casts his vest into the discard and appears in a boiled shirt, "galluses," and an alpaca coat over his arm, then the house knows it is time to put on summer clothes.

HOMESPUN YARN.

It is not yet too late to plant gladiolus bulbs.

A good pongee silk is serviceable and "dressy" also.

Screens are cheaper than doctor's bills, and a flyless house is a great comfort.

"Needles and pins and postage stamps," goes the old rhyme. By the way, why not these very things in a conspicuous receptacle in the guest room?

To know how to make 57 different varieties of pie and cake isn't worth as much to the family health as is a little knowledge about balanced rations.

No wonder the kitchen knives get dull when they're dumped all together in a drawer. A strap tacked at two-inch intervals on the cupboard door makes a first-rate knife holder.

Bedbugs and cockroaches are a curiosity in most homes now-a-days, but it's best to be prepared. A new bulletin on household insects from the state college at Ithaca tells how to insure your home against these and other pests. Ask for H 128; its free.

If the kitchen screen door has a small hole in it, here's an easy way to repair it: Cut a square patch, "ravel" the edges, bend up to the "fringe" at right angles to the patch, apply the patch over the hole, push the fringe through the screen, and then bend the fringe over.

"FASHION SHOP" OPENS.

And Crosby Building Is Now Called "Clermont."

The Fashion Shop, a new business enterprise in this city, opened today in the "Clermont," corner Wall and John streets, heretofore known as the Crosby building, the new owners of the building, Messrs. Levine, Feldman & Lowenthal, having decided to have this business block hereafter designated by the name "Clermont." The Fashion Shop is at the corner store formerly occupied by Charles S. Wood and an entirely new front, new modern fixtures, and an up-to-date line of millinery, gowns, coats, cloaks and women's apparel will be sold. The building which is being painted a cream color with grey trimmings presents an attractive appearance, and with new fronts the reconstructed building is a notable improvement to Wall street.

Sugar Consumption Makes Record.

Sugar consumption in the United States will make a new high record in the fiscal year ending with this month The quantity imported from foreign countries, says a statement by The National City Bank of New York, was greater in the ten months for which figures are now available than in the corresponding period of any preceding year. The domestic production of the year was bigger than ever before and the exportation only about one-half that of the corresponding ten months of the preceding year. These official figures of the tene months' imports and exports plus the domestic production the ten months' imports and established, adds the bank's statement give a net total available for consumption so much in excess of any earlier year that we may not be surprised if the official figures showing the average per capita consumption in the fiscal year 1921 run up nearly to 100 pounds per capita against 91½ pounds per capita in the fiscal year 1920, the former high record year, 82 pounds in 1919, and and 89 pounds per capita in the high record pre-war year 1914.

Custom Long Kept Up.

Up to a few years ago a horse saddled and bridled, stood in the stables of the Vicarage (Vivian, as it was spelled in the old days) of Tywardreath (Cornwall, Eng.) ready for use night and day. For 500 years horses had succeeded each other in commemoration of the escape on horseback of a Vivian who lived in the days of the memorable flood which submerged the land, some say in 1014 and others in 1099.

C. OF C. WORK IS ENDURING

The permanent necessity of a strong Chamber of Commerce, said Secretary Hudson, is the thing which is making a powerful appeal to captains and workers in the present membership campaign and which will undoubtedly make strong appeal to prospective as well as present members.

The Kingston chamber has been able to accomplish things of permanent value to the community and these matters have to do with a variety of problems.

The building of the new silk mill and the promotion of the Kingston Boys Welfare Council to work for the coming generation are both, for example, permanent community assets the value of which will increase each year. Encouragement of membership in our Savings and Loan Associations, work toward helping secure the deepening and improvement of Rondout creek channel, interest in a practical plan of zoning are all matters that affect not one year only but the permanent development and welfare of Kingston and all of its people.

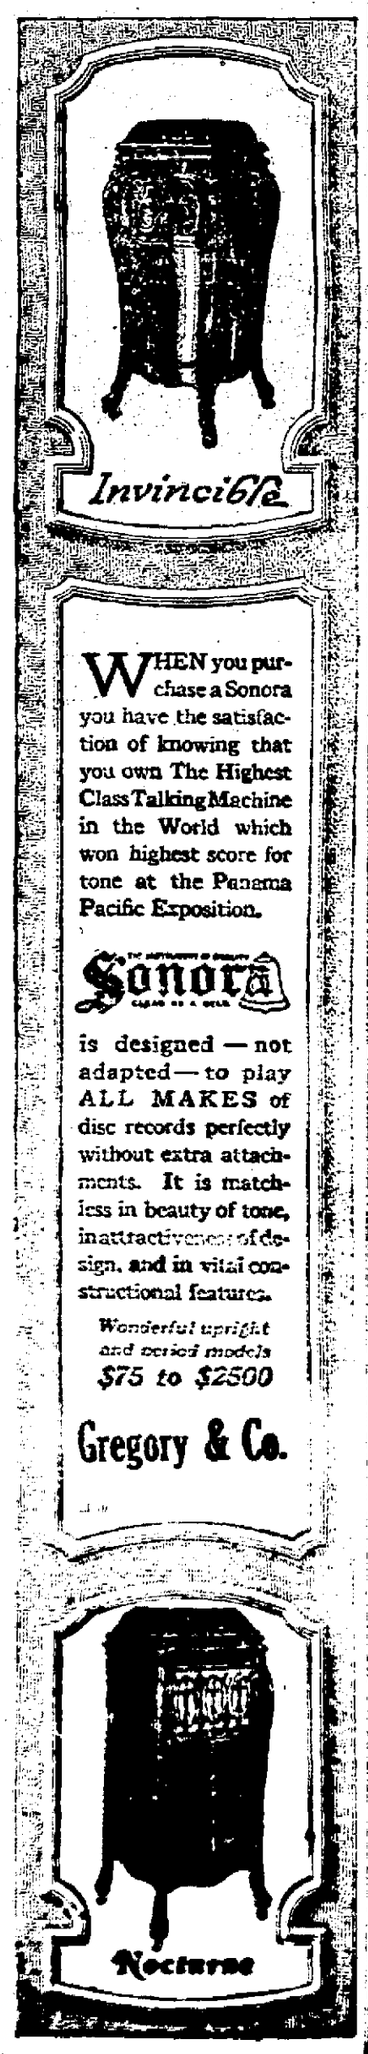

More and more our members and the people of the city are coming to look to the Chamber of Commerce for leadership and initiative in attempting to solve community problems of all kinds. And with this habit of mind there is coming a growing appreciation of the magnitude and difficulty of the tasks which a progressive Chamber of Commerce must undertake.

Industrial, commercial and residential development—each and every one presents its own problems of great magnitude. And underlying all is the civic development of Kingston.

The Kingston Chamber of Commerce has had a steady and a large growth but the growing appreciation of the many things which a Chamber of Commerce should and must undertake has meant that new problems and increased responsibilities have taxed to the utmost our resources in workers and in financial resources.

We need to record another and larger increase in order that necessary constructive effort for Kingston may not be hampered.

The prospects for doing this are excellent inasmuch as veteran workers are again responding and new workers are enrolling. The message of working together for Kingston will be carried very thoroughly to the people of the city by the splendid campaign organization now forming.

FAITHFUL TEDDY BEAR.

"A Teddy Bear," said Daddy, "was sitting in a go-cart beside a little girl who was fast asleep. Her mother was shopping in a big grocery shop nearby, and the go-cart was out in front of the shop on the street.

"In a Go-Cart."

"The Teddy Bear's brown eyes were wide open and the little girl's eyes were tight shut so no one could see what color they were, and no one knew of course, unless they knew the little girl when she was awake.

"But if anyone should have asked the Teddy Bear any questions this would have been his answer for this was the answer he gave to one of the Sun fairies who asked him what he was doing.

"The Sun fairy couldn't be seen by the people because the Sun fairy wore such a dazzling bright dress no one could have looked at her any more than one could look at the Sun. No one, you know, can look straight at the Sun to see what is happening in his home.

"'You see, Sun Fairy,' said the Teddy Bear, 'this little girl is fast asleep. And I am on guard.'

"'What?' asked the Sun Fairy.

"'I am seeing that no harm comes to her,' said the Teddy Bear. 'You see I am beside her, watching over her, and that is what being on guard means. I'm guarding her or watching over her, whichever you want to say.

"'I will not close my eyes. Perhaps folks would say that I couldn't close my eyes even if I wanted to, but I wouldn't close them even if I could! No, indeed, for I want to watch out and guard over this little girl. I cannot help but do this, because she and I are great friends, and one always wants to do things for one's friends. Even a little Teddy Bear feels that way.

"'When she is awake she plays with me and hugs me and kisses me. She calls me her own adorable Teddy Bear.

"'Now that is a great thing! Just think of being called an adorable Teddy Bear by the nicest little girl in all the world. Perhaps many would not agree with me that she was the nicest little girl in all the world. There are some who would say, "No, my little girl is the nicest."

"'Or, perhaps another would say, "My little sister is the nicest." But I think that this little girl is the nicest in the whole world and I love her better than any other.

"'While she is sleeping I shall watch over her just as she loves me when she is awake.

"'You see how I have one paw on her shoulder? That is to let people know that I am holding her as fast as I can.

"'And I will watch over her until her mother comes out of the shop, and if her mother goes in another shop I will watch over her again. I will watch over her all the time, any time.

"'Yes, when she is awake she loves me so devotedly. She pets me and says such nice things to me. When she goes to bed she takes me with her. And we have such a pleasant sleep and wake up all rested. I cuddle near her when she is asleep and I do love her so. When she has parties and brings out a small table and puts lemonade on it on the hot summer days, I, the Teddy Bear, sit upon a small chair near the table and make-believe I am having some lemonade too.

"Make Believe."

"'And she puts flowers on the table and asks me if I think they're pretty. Then she answers for me which makes it very nice and easy for me.

"'Ah, yes, Sun Fairy, I will guard over my little mistress while she takes a nap and I will not leave her, for she is the dearest little girl in all the world—her own Teddy Bear thinks so, and surely a Teddy Bear who is with her all the time ought to know. Yes, he ought to know, and he does!'"

"So It Seems."

In the course of play, during a basketball match, the owner of the ball was knocked off. Holding the ball in his hands, the referee told the players of the accident.

"So it seems" (was its answer), replied one boy.

Another, not to be outdone, said:

"Oh, seems just discovered (discovered) it."

PORTS FLOODED WITH STOWAWAYS

Seirous Problem for Immigration and Customs Officials

MANY WOMEN AMONG THEM

International Stowaway Ring Operating in all the Chief Ports of Europe and Collecting Big Profits on its Promise to Ship Immigrants in Hiding to the United States—Concealed in Most Unexpected Places—New Ruling Stops Traffic.

Immigration and customs authorities in New York are contending with an unprecedented influx of stowaways from Europe. Since the war a large part of Europe seems bent on coming to this country, whether possessed of the necessary passage money or not, and as might be expected an obliging organization has grown up to help them do it, writes Frederic J. Haskin in the Chicago News. An international stowaway ring—a sort of Stowaway Limited—now is operating in all of the chief ports of Europe, collecting big profits on its promise to ship immigrants in hiding to America. The difficulties of landing at Ellis island do not concern these professional hiders. They merely put the trusting one on board in charge of one of their sailor accomplices, and collect their fee. Some of the sailors, of course, work alone, but in such risky business it is much safer to work with the ring.

Before the war the cost of steerage transportation across the Atlantic was from $25 to $40. Today it ranges anywhere from $120 to $160, a prohibitive price to many would-be immigrants, anxious to escape the awful poverty and after-war depression of Europe. Such disheartened peasants are easy prey for the stowaway gang. "You can be hidden on board ship and supplied with food and water and it will cost you only $50," they are told. And of course they grasp at the opportunity.

Hence during the last year stowaways have been coming in droves, sometimes as many as a dozen carried in the hold of one ship. They represent all types and conditions of mankind, from desperate criminals to impecunious but respectable professional men, but they are mostly unskilled workers. Searching for them is like hunting for the proverbial needle in the haystack. They are concealed in the most unexpected places—in the ship's coal bins, in its lockers, behind secret panels, in boxes labeled "chemicals" and "olives" and even in the ship's ventilator flues.

During the typhus scare recently a vessel was examined from top to bottom and nearly taken apart according to an immigration official. In order to find any passenger who might possibly have avoided an examination. Then the announcement that the ship's interior was to be gassed was megaphoned about the decks. Only then did eleven husky stowaways creep out from hiding, preferring detection to death. In some cases though the ship's authorities have not been so considerate in announcing current events, and stowaways have been fatally gassed in their hiding places.

How the Ring Works.

From the little that has been learned regarding the stowaway ring, it seems probable they have confederates on nearly every ship leaving a south-European port, as well as on many leaving north-European ports. In some instances the stowaway has been required to bring his own food but usually this is supplied to him while on board. If found by those not in the ring's service he is immediately taken before the captain, who decides his fate. Sometimes the treatment is extremely severe. He may be placed in a pen and given only bread and water, or he may be chained uncomfortably to a post, but in most cases he is apt to be put to work. Sometimes so many stowaways are found on the ship that the captain puts them under lock and key—a wise precaution since it has been found that many of them are desperate criminals who have been encouraged by the police authorities to leave various ports of Europe. One captain keeps himself in excellent physical trim by staging an energetic fist battle with every stowaway brought into his office. As a result very few stowaways have appeared recently on his ship.

Occasionally a stowaway gets aboard without the aid of the ring or the crew or anybody else, depending only on his own ingenuity to see him through. One such was an English lad of fifteen, who had a round, cherubic face and wore good clothes. In choosing his quarters he selected the most comfortable ones he could find—namely, the soft rug beneath the captain's bed, where he got along very nicely during the entire trip. In the daytime he mixed facetiously about the deck and chatted pleasantly with the other passengers. During the first day he had appeared in the dining room and was assigned to a table as politely as though he had paid his passage money. Not until the ship reached this side and the passengers list was checked was the young stowaway detected, and then so agreeable had he made himself that the passengers chipped in and paid for his passage home.

Women Stowaways Numerous.

Women stowaways are much more numerous than one would suppose. They come boldly across in all the usual hiding places, occasionally disguised as men but usually in their own clothes. During the war women simply couldn't be kept off the troop ships, two of them even starting successfully away on a battle cruiser. Since the war there is the recent case of a Brazilian which put into a southern port with more than fifty women stowaways on board.

Heretofore the treatment of stowaways on this side has been rather lenient. They did not have a great deal of difficulty in smuggling their way through, and if caught, kind friends were apt to come to their rescue or the authorities were disposed to give them every opportunity to make good. The new ruling, however, providing that no stowaway can be landed at an American port who does not possess an authentic passport, has put a decided crimp in the stowaway traffic. Ships are making a careful search for unknown passengers before leaving port on the other side, as the carrying of stowaways back and forth is not a remunerative occupation.

Ellis Island authorities already notice a falling off in the stowaway business and it is thought that the next month or so will see its complete cessation.

BODY FOUND IN BOX.

Corps of Woman Stored in Marshall, Ill., Building Since 1914.

The body of a woman, believed to have been dead for thirty years and stored since 1914 in a box in the Herald building at Marshall, Ill., which passed through Terre Haute Ind., recently has uncovered a mystery which is baffling authorities of Terre Haute and Chicago, where the corpse was found in the box. A man giving the name of M. French has paid a rental charge of 50 cents a month for the storage of the box, containing the body, to Mrs. Emma C. Lockhart, of Chicago, owner of the Herald building. Many years ago a man by the name of French lived in Marshall and taught school.

A man, about thirty years old, arrived in Marshall May 3 and had the box removed from the upper floor of the building, where it had been occupying space in a woman's lodge room. It was labeled "books" and was so heavy several men were required to handle it.

When the box arrived in Terre Haute it caused much comment and A. J. Tenowine, manager of the local express office, caused the box, which was consigned to Sycamore, Ill., to be turned over several times. The express company officials were notified and an examination of the box at the Grand Central station at Chicago revealed the body. Physicians who examined the body said the woman had been shot to death.

REUNITED AFTER 25 YEARS

Sisters Lived but Ten Blocks Apart in Same City.

After a separation of 25 years, Mrs. Sallie Grayum and Mrs. Moline Beswick, sisters, were reunited in Colorado Springs, Colo. For two years they lived within ten blocks of each other and perhaps passed on the street.

After their marriages the sisters corresponded for a time, but the letters became fewer and fewer and 25 years ago ceased. The husbands died and the widows married again. Eleven years ago Mrs. Beswick moved with her family to Colorado Springs and two years ago the Graynms took up their residence in the same city, about ten blocks away from the Beswick home.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Beswick addressed a letter to her sister under the name she took when married the first time. A married daughter of Mrs. Grayum received the letter and forwarded it to her mother, with the result that the couple learned they lived near each other.

FOXES DEAD AND DRUNK

Wild Animals and Birds Ate Mash From Moonshine Whisky.

Beasts of the field and the birds of the air are not protected from intoxication by the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead act, if reports from Vanceburg, Ky., are to be believed. A number of foxes have been discovered lying about in careless attitudes, stupefied, and some have been killed with rocks. Others were already dead, and post mortems revealed all had perished of alcoholic poisoning, induced by eating moonshine whiskey mush. Many owls have been found in a similar condition, but curiously no cases of birds that do their sleeping at night have been reported.

MAKES NEW RECORD

Golden State Makes Fast Trip Between Yokohama and Honolulu.

The shipping board freight and passenger steamer Golden State, which arrived at San Francisco recently, broke the record for the run from Yokohama to Honolulu by making the trip in eight days 9 hours and 36 minutes. The distance between Honolulu and San Francisco was run in four days and 22 hours, or 18 hours more than the record held by the army transport Great Northern.

Trinitrotoluene, a product of toluene, is derived from coal tar and composed of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen and nitrogen. It is considered one of the most powerful of the high explosives and is used for purposes for which dynamite and nitroglycerin are not adapted. The latter is the most powerful explosive of its kind.

BOTH FIGHTERS SEEK NEW BOUTS

(By Tad)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 11.—We are reliably informed that both Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier are looking about for suitable opponents for bouts on Labor Day.

A prominent sporting man of Atlantic City has let it be known that he is very anxious to sign Dempsey and Willard at the city by the sea on that date and intends to build a big arena for the bout if he lands it.

"I don't care if we don't have one New Yorker there" he chirped in an uptown hotel yesterday. "We have enough people in Atlantic City and the surrounding towns to fill any arena. The floating population of Atlantic City alone is 150,000 a day at this season and believe me, I'd have an overflow for the fight that would fill a second arena. The people want to see Willard in another go with Jack. There are any number who believe that he can beat Dempsey. It would be a good betting fight and a thriller to watch."

As for Carpentier, we hear on pretty good authority that Deschamps has buzzed Tex Rickard about a show on Labor Day for his man. He feels that Georges will beat Dempsey and wants to get another crack at American dollars before going back to France.

If Georges should lose to Dempsey after a stubborn battle he would be a great card against a suitable opponent. He would not draw, however, with any of the men that Tom Gibbons has had handed to him. He'd have to get some one with some sort of a show.

Fight fans will only have two months to rest up, as Labor Day comes in September, and it would have to be a pretty good card to hop the public up again after such an event as is offered July 2.

Roly Poly Willie Meehan, who is at present running a grocery store in San Francisco, is out after Dempsey again.

"Jack will knock Carpentier for a rack of brick flats on July 2," says Willie, "and I want the next fight. I met Jack five times already and grabbed two decisions from him. Eddie Graney handed me one and Bob Shand the other. I'm the only guy that knows how to lick Dempsey! He's a pip puncher. He can lick big fellows but he can't get at me. I fought him at the Red Cross benefit in 'Frisco. The Red Cross got every cent of the gate. We didn't get a bean. I'd like to fight him once again and get a cut of the jack. He dropped me with a left hook to the chin in the second round but I got up and won the decision."

Y., president of the International Longshoremen's Union, who has been appointed by President Harding to the new United States Shipping Board for five years as representative of the Great Lakes region. Mr. O'Connor was for a time mentioned as a possible Secretary of Labor.

Lady Churchill Loses Foot.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, June 11—Lady Randolph Churchill today had to have a foot amputated, as a consequence of an accident in which she was seriously injured a fortnight ago. Her condition was described as satisfactory by physicians. (Lady Randolph Churchill is the daughter of the late Leonard Jerome of New York and is the mother of Winston Spencer Churchill, the former British war minister.)

HOW—

GREAT CHINESE ENGINEER TAMED TURBULENT RIVER.

—The Hoang is the largest river of Southern China. The Nile possibly excepted, it has been more intimately connected with the economics of the world than any other river.

According to the Shu-king, the books of history edited by Confucius, a most destructive flood followed the bursting of the river about 2200 B. C. The work of restoring the revetments and adjusting the channels to the volume of the water made the name of the engineer, Ta-yu, famous for all time. His engineering skill has not been surpassed or even equaled by his successors, and his method of river control may be heeded by engineers of today.

It is practically the method adopted by the engineers of the Mississippi River commission—namely, the adjustment of the velocity of the current to the maximum load of silt which the water carries. The hydraulic engineer of today accomplishes this by impounding the excess of water during flood seasons and releasing it during seasons of drought; Ta-yu accomplished the same result by the construction of additional channels.

In the lower part of the plain nine additional channels were constructed. Any number or all of them could be thrown open to a flood; any number of them might be closed as necessity demanded. Thereby a uniform volume of water and a constant velocity of the current was insured.

It was a task of 13 years. Thrice, according to the Shu-king, Ta-yu passed his own door without even staying to caress his child. His efforts succeeded, and the name of Ta-yu will never pass to the unknown. Incidentally, his father before him had been the engineer in charge and for failure to control a wild flood had been permitted to become his own executioner.—Jacques W. Redway in Ecology.

WOMAN REVIVING LOST ART

How Work of Making Miniatures in Colored Wax Is Being Restored to the World.

Successful revival of a lost art reflects more credit on the artist than the mere improvising of a new one, for real art does not take kindly to novelty. By the execution of a series of charming miniatures done in colored wax, described and illustrated in the Popular Mechanics Magazine, an American artist, Miss Ethel Frances Mundy, has made available to contemporary connoisseurs a mode of portraiture that flourished in ancient Greece and Rome, appeared sporadically up to the Eighteenth century in England, France, Italy, Spain and even America, and then disappeared.

With few technical data to guide her, and a confusing variety of method evident among the old masters, the devotee engaged a chemist to devise a wax that would not melt after its application, and began a search for colors that were permanent and without chemical interaction. A steel scapula and a set of improvised orangewood tools composed the working outfit, and metal plates coated with a film of wax became the "canvas." On such a plate the outline of the subject, generally in profile, is first traced with a sharp point. Then begins the real work of building up the miniature image with particles of wax, into each of which has been kneaded a special color. The finished portraits, besides the interest of their unusual technique, are remarkable for a delicacy, a fidelity and a warmth of detail that would do credit to the better-known, and seemingly more flexible, mediums of artistic expression.

How Screen Fairies Are Made.

There are two different ways of producing fairies in a movie picture. The first and oldest is to place the fairy, usually an actress of small stature or a child, far in the background on the scene so that when photographing the scene she appears smaller than the other actors because of the fact that she is a greater distance away from the camera. Another, and a space-saving way, is to have the "fairy" perform in a space behind and a trifle to one side of the camera. Her actions are caught by a series of mirrors and reflected into a mirror in the scene which is carefully camouflaged. Both the reflection in the mirror and the remainder of the scene are photographed at one time. Thus by placing a birthday cake with lighted candles on a table in front of the mirror the reflections are so manipulated that the fairy appears to be dancing in the flame of the candles.

How It Might Be Used.

Mother always cuts Penny's hair, and as she was about to offer the clippings away the little girl stopped her.

"Mother, you're not going to throw my hair away, are you?"

"Yes, my dear. What's the good of keeping it?"

"Why, can't you make it grow on grandpa's head? He's got no hair at all."

One Recipe for Success.

All a man has to do to make a real success in life is to spend 25 or 30 years learning to do some simple thing better than anybody else can do it and then 25 or 30 more doing it every day, so as to give people a chance to find out about it.—Ohio State Journal.

THE AMERICAN LEGION

(Copy for This Department Supplied by The American Legion News Service.)

MEANS VICTORY FOR LEGION

Report of Dawes Committee Embodies Principal Features of Organization's Relief Plan.

All investigation speed records at the national capitol were broken by President Harding's special commission to frame a comprehensive program for the relief of disabled veterans, which was headed by Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes of Chicago.

He jammed through, in less than two days, an inquiry into treatment of disabled soldiers, recommendations that mean adequate hospital treatment to 10,000 wounded veterans now in poorhouses, asylums, insufficiently equipped hospitals or in no institution at all, as well as payment for disability to thousands of veterans not in hospitals.

The report of the Dawes committee is considered as a great victory for the American Legion program for disabled soldier relief. Its recommendations embody the principal features of the Legion plan.

They are:

1. Appointment of one official to have charge of all disabled soldiers' relief and benefits. There now are three departments.

2. Decentralization of administration, so officials with delegated authority may act without red tape.

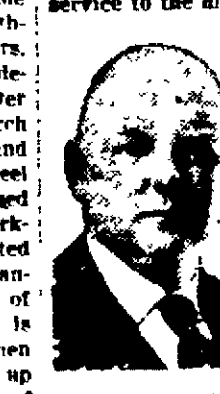

3. Appropriation of whatever additional money is necessary for new hospitals.

Other members of the committee were: F. W. Galbraith, Jr., national commander of the American Legion; Franklin D'Olier, past national commander of the American Legion; Thomas W. Miller of Delaware; Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the Navy; Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York, a sister of former President Roosevelt; John L. Lewis of Indianapolis, president of the United Mine Workers of America; Mrs. Henry Rea of Pittsburg; Milton J. Foreman of Chicago; Henry S. Berry of Hendersonville, Tenn., and T. V. O'Connor of Buffalo, head of the longshoremen's union.

BUCK PRIVATE TO COMMANDER

C. L. Dawson, North Dakota Legion Man, Rises From Lowest to Highest Rank.

From the lowest rank in the military service to the highest grade conferred by the ex-service men of his state is the record jump made by C. L. Dawson of Beach, N. D., recently appointed national field representative of the American Legion.

From buck private to department commander of the American Legion in North Dakota tells the story of Mr. Dawson's rise. Although well past middle age, he enlisted as a private in the Balloon corps soon after war was declared. After fifteen months at Fort Omaha, he was discharged with the rank of private first class. He was chief clerk of the North Dakota legislature during its last session.

As department commander and national executive committeeman, Mr. Dawson was largely responsible in building up a strong organization of the Legion in North Dakota. He is a graduate of the University of North Dakota and before entering the service was state's attorney at Golden Valley, N. D.

IDEALS OF AMERICAN LEGION

Stand of Bill Dowling Post of Chadron, Neb., Has Brought Much Favorable Comment.

The ideals of the American Legion are explained in a published announcement of Bill Dowling Post of Chadron, Neb., which has drawn much favorable comment from Legion posts in the Middle West. The announcement read:

"To the public—No, we are not organized to 'run the country' or to 'rob the government.' Read the preamble to our constitution.

"To politicians—We stand for 'policies, not politics.'

"To capital—Some of us are capitalists; all of us are laborers.

"To labor—Read what Samuel Gompers has to say in regard to labor and the Legion.

"To all ex-service men—Let's stick together. We started it over there; let's finish it in the American Legion.

"To all un-Americans—Look out for the American Legion!"

Wrong Tactics.

"Steve never did have good sense!" interrupted Gus Johnson of Bumpus Ridge, Ark. "He ort to have knowed that it would be cheaper to take a shot at his brother-in-law than to burn the house down to get rid of him."—Kansas City Star.

HOW LEGION MEN GET LAND

Applicants for Homestead Entries Should First Make Personal Inspection of District.

In response to many inquiries from ex-service men in the Middle West regarding government land grants, Irvin I. Femrite, secretary of Argonne post of the American Legion in Des Moines, Ia., has made an investigation of the situation.

"Persons desiring to make homestead entries," said Mr. Femrite, "should first fully inform themselves as to the character and quality of lands they desire to enter and should in no case apply to enter until they have examined each legal subdivision for which they make application. Satisfactory information concerning the lands may be obtained from a personal visit to the district in which one wishes to take out land.

"Each applicant is required to swear that he is well acquainted with the character of the land described in his application and the only way that he can assure himself that prior settlers have no claim is to make a personal inspection of same.

"An ex-service man is required to establish residence on the land involved after his entry is allowed, unless an extension of time is granted on account of sickness, climatic reasons or similar excuses. Credit is given for service in the Army, Navy or Marines, providing the applicant has had eighteen months of service. If such is the case, the applicant is required to live on the land only seven months. If he obtains so much credit for military service that there is required only one year's residence, he must prove only such amount of cultivation as will prove his good faith as a homestead claimant. If his credit for service requires more than one year's residence, he must show cultivation to the extent of one-sixteenth of the area of the land beginning with the second year. Regardless of credit for service, all applicants must prove that there is a habitable house on the land.

"There is only one portion of the country where land may be obtained without the requirement of a homestead. At Sentinel Ariz., there are 10,000 acres open, for which no homestead is required but which necessitates the payment of seventy-five dollars for three hundred and twenty acres and an expenditure of one dollar per acre for improvement. This is arid land which may be used for cotton raising if irrigated. When irrigated, it sells for from two to three hundred dollars an acre. It is estimated that the cost of irrigation on three hundred and twenty acres is about $10,000.

"Approximately 132,000,000 acres of land are open, including every state west of the Mississippi river except Iowa and Texas. The first thing to do is to decide on the state. Then, get the location of the land offices in that state. All blank forms of affidavits and other papers may be obtained for the district office in which the land lies.

"Taking out a homestead is not a speculative proposition. If the applicant can afford to establish himself for the period required under the homestead laws, taking advantage of the credit allowed him for service in the World war, he will be well repaid after a few years."

BACK TO NATURE FOR HEALTH

Ex-Service Man is Attending College in Bathing Suit and Living in Pup Tent.

Attending college in a bathing suit and living in a "pup tent" on his alma mater's campus, H. B. Parker, of Boston, Mass., is gaining in a hard fight for life and an education.

Mr. Parker, formerly a student at Boston university, had to leave the colder climate because of the impaired condition of his lungs following service in the army during the World war.

H. B. Parker and His Pup Tent.

Realizing his condition, he sought schooling in a warmer zone and took to the open. Through an arrangement with Dr. W. S. Currell, of the University of South Carolina, he pitched his tent on the university campus. With a mosquito bar and a folding cot to furnish his habitation, he is pursuing his studies and is steadily progressing on the road to recovery.

Before leaving Boston, Mr. Parker was appointed by the American Legion to investigate conditions at state institutions in behalf of the Legion's department of vocational training. He urges all men affected as himself to seek the open and to find health in the "back to nature" plan.

CONVICT MAKES DARING ESCAPE; THEN KILLS SELF

Forces Physician to Drive Car, but Shoots Self When Pursuers Close in on Him.

Al Biscardo, thirty-five years old, serving a term of fifteen years for automobile theft in the Wyoming penitentiary shot and killed himself on a prairie near Rawlins, Wyo., after making one of the most daring escapes on record from the Wyoming prison.

Forcing Warden Frank O. Haskell to unlock the door of his cell, with drawn revolver he forced the prison physician, Dr. Raymond Baker, and R. C. Magor, who had come to attend Biscardo, believing him ill, to line up against the wall. He told the warden he would hold the men as hostages until he made his escape.

Leaving the prison with the three men covered, Biscardo took possession of the physician's automobile and ordered him to drive the machine away with Mr. Magor in the front seat with him. The convict sat in the rear seat with his revolver pointed at the two men.

The chase was taken up by the warden and Deputy Warden Keefe after the automobile passed the line indicated by Biscardo.

The first automobile gradually drew away from the pursuing machine until it was forced to stop sixteen miles from Rawlins on account of engine trouble. Leaving the car, Biscardo ran a short distance in the bush to hide from the pursuing party. When the warden's car drew up a shot was heard and Biscardo was found dead, one bullet having passed into his brain.

EITEL FOUND GUILTY

Hohenzollern Prince Smuggled Cash Into Holland.

Prince Eitel Friedrich, the kaiser's son and head of the Hohenzollern family in Germany, is "schieber." So the court decided at Berlin. While the word "schieber" perhaps is meaningless in America, it is the meanest thing to call anyone in continental Europe, being a cross between a war profiteer, a smuggler, and a winner of war blood money. Prince Eitel was found guilty of dodging taxes by shoving the Hohenzollern fortune into Holland.

"What do you think of the verdict?" I asked the prince when court adjourned.

"Five thousand marks fine may be small in your American eyes—a mere hundred dollars—but it is big for me," replied the prince. "My one object in sending the money to Holland was to protect what little was left of the Hohenzollern fortune. I had to protect my wife and our fortune. Every one said the government planned to confiscate our possessions. I did not know it was illegal to send money to Holland."

"Do you think there was prejudice against you in court?" I asked.

"Quite the contrary," replied the prince. "I am sure the court treated me as a plain German citizen."

NEVER RODE ON A TRAIN

Aged Woman Had Never Been in Automobile Either.

Mrs. Mary Jane Watterson, who celebrated her seventy-ninth birthday one recent Sunday at her home, 12 miles west of Scottsburg, Ind., has never ridden on a train or in an automobile. It is said that she stepped over the Scott county line into Jackson county on one or two occasions. Mrs. Watterson has never had a tooth pulled, or suffered a toothache. Her only photograph was taken about 15 years ago.

Mrs. Watterson is active for her age. Her husband, Henry Watterson, who was a Civil war veteran, is living. They have two children and 15 grandchildren. About fifty neighbors surprised her that day, each bringing a well filled basket.

ROOSTER LIKE A HEN

Stopped Crowing and Sat Upon a Nest for Hatching.

In the poultry yard of J. H. Byron of Mercersburg, Pa., there is a bantam rooster which is caring for four little chicks hatched out recently.

About four weeks ago the Byron family missed the crowing of the bantam rooster, which usually began at 4:30 a. m. and continued for an hour or more. It was found sitting on the nest, clucking like a hen.

All efforts to make him leave the nest failed. Seven eggs were put under him, four of which hatched.

SURVIVED STORM AT SAMOA

Major General Lejeune One of the American Sailors Who Came Safely Through Hurricane.

Secretary Edwin Denby of the navy is a fan on the history of that branch of the service and never misses an opportunity to expatiate on its glories.

He was speaking at a Navy league dinner not long ago and vividly described the events as they occurred when, in 1889, a hurricane caught three of our ships, three German ships and one flying the British flag in the harbor at Apia, Samoa, and sank them all except the Britisher, which managed to get to sea.

He told how the American ships were battered to pieces on the rocks, how the Vandalia sank and her crew rode out the storm in the rigging which still protruded from the water.

Three seats down the table from Mr. Denby sat Major General John A. Lejeune, commandant of marines. The secretary of the navy did not know at the time that Gen. Lejeune, then a naval cadet, was one of the lads who hung on to the rigging of the Vandalia through the duration of the storm.

The Spring Straw Hat.

All winter long man wears a hat that is easy and comfortable—a friendly, [illegible], wellworn sort of thing that he can pull down over his ears when the wind blows or throw it in the air at a football game. It's just the sort of clothing a man ought to wear, not tyrannical but companionable. And then along comes spring in the air, and the poets, the spirit of man breaks its bonds. A fellow feels restless and indomitable, fit for anything and free as the wind. He brooks no restraint, not he. He looks upon his good old cap or hat and decides he ought to buy another. And he does. He goes and gets himself a straw hat—a stiff, uncomfortable, unreliable sort of thing that is faithless to every passing breeze. He can't roll it up and put it in his pocket, he can't throw it into the air, he can't pull it down over his ears, he can't do anything with it except wear it daintily and carefully until the time comes to smash it in the autumn and go back to the old cloth hat. And that's the best proof of the madness of spring—not love, not blooming flowers, but the new straw hat that leaves a red mark on a fellow's forehead.—San Francisco Call.

MURDER OF LITTLE GIRL DISCLOSED

Her Nude and Badly Mutilated Body Found Buried in Cellar of Negro Who Has Disappeared.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Moorestown, N. J., June 11.—Discovery of the horribly mutilated body of seven year old Matilda Russo, who had been missing since June 4, set the town and county authorities working today on one of the most brutal murders on record in this section.

The child's body, without a stitch of clothing, was found beneath three feet of earth in the cellar of a colored man's home—that of Louis Lively—adjoining the home of her parents, Mr and Mrs. Michael Russo, who have been frantic with fear for their daughter's life ever since she dropped from sight a week ago today.

Matilda's throat was slashed from ear to ear, and her abdomen was ripped by some sharp instrument, presumably a razor. On her head is the mark of a terrific blow.

A search for Lively was organized immediately after Chief of Police Bradshaw and Patrolman Jacobs, of Moorestown, had unearthed the child's body. Under the direction of County Detective Parker, men are scouring the pine and swamp section of South Jersey, in which direction the colored man was walking when last seen.

Lively is a married man of about 35. His height is five feet four inches. When last seen he wore a brown suit and straw hat.

It was between seven and eight o'clock last Saturday night that little Matilda suddenly vanished as if the earth had swallowed her. About an hour later Lively disappeared, the police learned, and he did not appear until Sunday night.

Lively's wife had been away from home for two weeks. She returned last night. No sooner had she entered her home than Police Chief Bradshaw demanded entrance and began the search that resulted in the gruesome discovery.

Hovering in the dusk some distance from his home was Lively, the authorities learned. They refuse to say at this time just what led the trail of suspicion to him, but they say he knew his house was being watched, and the fact is that he has not been seen since yesterday evening.

The full horrible tale of what the child went through—the first flash of unspeakable fright that must have pierced her little heart at the fiend's approach, her vain struggle within his claws, and all the agony of soul and body before she breathed her last—all that seems "written" on the slim white corpse—"written" with slashes and cuts and bruises that made grizzled and hardened policemen turn away from the sight shuddering.

Mrs. Lively is held in the jail at Mount Holly. There is no charge against her, nor do the authorities suspect her of having had any hand in the crime. She was taken in custody merely as a material witness.

The search for her husband centers on Cape May county. There are no direct clews leading thither, but Detective Parker, by deduction from what little scraps there are believes that is the logical place of hiding.

Bit by bit the police are piecing together Lively's movements the past week. They have learned that he slept every night in his home which harbored the victim's body, and that he left every morning, presumably to go to work.

Partly by intuition, partly by shreds of evidence which they have not yet revealed, the police went to the murder cellar almost immediately after entering the Lively home. With a crow bar they probed the dirt floor. There was a soft spot. The ghastly discovery followed.

BAD FIRE AT MINGO HOLLOW

Pieces of Charred Tar Roofing Carried As Far As City Home and Residents of Shufeldt Street Picked Them Up—No One Hurt.

Fire stated to have been caused by a short circuit in the electric lighting system at the Nitro Powder Company plant at Mingo Hollow early Friday evening destroyed six of the buildings at the plant. About 7 o'clock there was a very heavy explosion at the plant and a minute later pieces of charred roofing paper were picked up by residents of Shufeldt street in their yards. The tar roofing was also carried as far as the City Home.

Inquiry at the office of the powder company this morning brought forth the statement that the fire was caused by a short circuit and that no one had been injured. There were two other lesser explosions following the heavy blast and was undoubtedly caused by fire reaching the building in which explosives were stored.

While the fire was in progress dense clouds of heavy smoke drifted across the Rondout creek and hung over the lower section of the city. It was about three hours before the fire burned itself out.

It was probably due to the fact that the fire occurred after the larger part of the employes had quit work for the day there was no one injured by the fire and explosion.

HONEYMOONERS BECOME VIOLENT

Pair in Buffalo Hotel Do Things That Are Very Novel But Expensive to Management and Are Put Under Observation.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Buffalo, N. Y. June 11—Showing signs of a mental disturbance in the Hotel Statler, this city, Vincent Luongo, 28 years old, and his wife, Catherine, 19 years old, of Brooklyn, who came to this city on their honeymoon four days ago, were this morning taken from the hotel by Patrolmen Redham and McNiff and sent to the city hospital for observation.

Employes of the hotel noticed the queer actions of the couple. A bell boy said when he brought food to their room, Mrs. Luongo declared it was poisoned and would not let her husband touch it. Later the couple, according to the police, broke off the hot water faucet and thought they were being gassed when the escaping steam filled the room.

They damaged the equipment in the room, the hotel clerk reported.

Attempts to coax the couple from the room mere futile. Both averred they would be assaulted if they ventured forth. They quieted down till shortly after 4 o'clock this morning, when both ran down the stairs and into Swan street. The hotel clerk summoned the two patrolmen. When they arrived the couple were in the hotel lobby, gesticulating wildly. The officers said Mrs. Luongo had a large stone in her jacket pocket for protection. Luongo put up a fight when being arrested and according to Redham, attempted to bite him. He was finally overpowered. The Luongos were married in Brooklyn about a week ago. They came to Buffalo primarily to see Niagara Falls.

St. Peter's Took Century to Build.

Over a century elapsed between the day the plans for St. Peter's church at Rome were submitted and the day of the consecration of the magnificent structure. Consequently, no one man can claim full credit for its erection, though the Italian architect Bramante deserves the lion's share, for he made the original design under orders from Pope Julius II, about 1503. In 1506 the Pontiff laid the first stone.

Little Black Bees.

Little black bees were on the blossoms of the wild cherry. They worked in its snow-white cups and often shook down the petals from the flowers. They darted from cluster to cluster, loading their thighs with precious colored pollen, while their wings vibrated in a bright, rather shrill murmur. They were ground bees and had their home among the stones in a bank of the creek. —Edna Phillips.

EXPERTS STUDY WILD WHEAT IN PHILIPPINES

Bureau of Agriculture Finds Adlay, Used for Ornaments, Is Food Grain.

The cultivation of adlay (coix lacryma jobi), with the view to its utilization as a food grain, has been undertaken by the bureau of agriculture and natural resources of the Philippine islands.

The grain, which is not unlike a wheat kernel, grows wild in the Philippines, and other tropical countries and has been chiefly used for ornamental purposes such as necklaces and for ornamenting picture frames, although the inhabitants of southern China are said to use the grain for food in small quantities.

The bureau of agriculture has for some time been engaged in developing the production of adlay at its experimental stations in various parts of the islands, and is now able to announce that the grain may be grown in such quantities as to form a valuable food product. The average yield, the bureau says, is between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds to the acre, and the plant can be grown successfully without irrigation at all elevations from sea level to 3,000 feet above the sea.

In a statement on the preparation of adlay for food, the bureau of agriculture says:

"As to the use of adlay for human food, more particularly as a wheat substitute, we have found that when hulled it cooks like rice and can be so eaten; cracked, it makes an excellent breakfast cereal; the meal, mixed with two parts adlay and one part wheat flour, bakes into light biscuits fully equal to graham biscuits.

"It is worthy of note that flour imports into the Philippines are steadily increasing, showing that the Filipino is gradually changing his food habits and is beginning to eat wheat instead of rice. It is believed that adlay merits serious attention as a grain crop in the Philippines. With a greater protein and fat content than either rice or corn, it is a more complete human food than either of these grains."

MEMORIAL TO ROOSEVELT

Plan to Build "Roosevelt House" for Men of Harvard University.

A proposal for the erection at Harvard university of a building to be known as "Roosevelt House" was made in a report to the Associated Harvard Clubs by a committee of alumni.

The building would contain a working floor for the use of university departments, and particularly for conferences between tutors and students, together with a reading room where Roosevelt memorabilia of all kinds would be kept.

The committee suggested that all books and state papers written by the former president, and books written about him, together with hunting trophies and other material relating to him, should be kept in the reading room, with the hope that this room "would be resorted to by all who wished to know or write about him."

The chairman of the committee which presented the report is Charles G. Washburn of Worcester, classmate and biographer of the colonel.

GIRL ATE 1,040 TACKS

Pound of Hardware Removed From Young Woman's Stomach.

A pound of foreign substance, mostly hardware, was removed from the stomach of Miss Rose Smith, 19 years old, of Madison, Wis., after an X-ray revealed the presence of a quantity of tacks and other articles in her abdomen.

Following the operation, nurses counted 1,040 carpet tacks, 12 screws, 12 open safety pins and a number of buttons, removed by the surgeons.

The girl is said to have a mania for swallowing foreign substances. She became violently ill and visited the university clinic for treatment. Miss Smith finally consented to an X-ray examination, when the discovery of the hardware was made.

BUILD ARGONNE HOTEL

Open Hostelry to Accommodate U. S. Tourists Who Visit Battlefield.

Under the direction of the minister of public works the Argonne Forest hotel has been formally opened by the French government on the site of the famous battle of the World war.

The hotel will meet the requirements of many Americans who visit the battlefield and it is within easy distance of the great American cemetery at Romagne. The hotel, modern in every respect, was constructed from old barracks used by the troops.

Woman Fined for Beating Veteran.

Mrs. James Holland, of Wilmington, Ill., an 80-year-old grandmother, was fined $100 and costs on a charge of assault and battery, placed under a peace bond, and ordered to pay the doctor bills for injuries she inflicted on William Johnson, eighty, a Civil war veteran.

Indian Woman Wins Rich City District.

Mary Partridge, Indian woman, won her suit to recover Country Heights, one of the most exclusive residential sections of Tulsa, Okla., involving about $1,500,000. More than 100 property owners were defendants in the suit.

World's Largest Petrified Forest.

The bureau of forestry says that the petrified forest of Arizona is considered the largest in existence and may soon be put in a class with the national parks of the United States. There are petrified forests in Colorado and Nebraska, but none compared with the petrified forest of Arizona.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 11.—The stock market continued under heavy selling pressure at the opening today, resulting in many issues, selling down to new low levels for the year. The declines ranged from fractions to over 3 points A renewal of the selling of Mexican Petroleum featured the trading and the stock broke 3 points to 129¾, a new low for the year. Crucible Steel was without support and dropped over 3 points to 58. Crucible directors will soon meet for dividend action and it is believed that the eight per cent annual dividend will be reduced The unsettled condition of the sugar market was reflected in another sinking spell in American Sugar, which yielded to a new low for the year at 73. Unfavorable dividend rumors were responsible for a drop of 1¼ points in Northern Pacific to a new low for the year of 66⅝. Atlantic Gulf was another weak spot going through its low record of yesterday, selling at 25½ Other weak issues were Corn Products, which fell 1 point, Baldwin, which dropped 1 point and General Asphalt which yielded nearly 2 points. Steel Common held firm at 76¾.

The stock market closed irregular today. The market was irregular in the late dealings some issues being in demand while others were again under pressure. The sugar stocks were weak Cuba Cane Sugar preferred dropping 3½ points to another new low record of 32½ and American Beet Sugar fell over one point to 29¾. United States Steel after selling up to 77 again dropped to 76¾, and while Crucible sold at a new low record in the last few minutes of 57¼ Chandler was in demand, moving up over one point to 59⅞, while Studebaker after selling up to 71½, fell to 70⅝ Mexican Petroleum rose 3 points and then dropped one point. Pan American Petroleum rose one point to 51¾. Government bonds unchanged; railway and other bonds irregular.

Blakeslee, commander of the department of New York, requesting that all Posts drape the Post banner for a period of thirty days, commencing June 9. (This does not refer to the national flag.) Also that all national flags of the Posts be flown at half mast for a period of thirty days and that all members will wear mourning, either crepe or circlet of black paper around Legion pins for a period of thirty days, commencing June 9. At each Post meeting held within the period of thirty days, commencing June 9, the commander should be prepared to read a short, concise review of the late National Commander Galbraith's life, including his war and Legion record. After this reading, sound "taps" and request members to stand at attention in honor of Commander Galbraith's memory for one minute

All local Posts of Ulster county are requested to follow out these requests in honor of Commander Galbraith, who died suddenly at Indianapolis on June 9, when he met with an automobile accident while engaged in Legion work

SETTLING CHICAGO BUILDING STRIKE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, June 11.—Resumption of building operations which have been tied up since May 1 by a strike of building workers, is expected immediately today, as the result of an arbitration agreement. Judge Landis is out of the city today and has not signified his willingness to act, but it is believed he will accept

It is estimated that $100,000,000 worth of building will be undertaken as the result of the settlement of the strike and more than 30,000 men who have been idle for two months will be given employment

Grand jury and legislative investigation of alleged graft in the building industry here is continuing The latest development in this connection is the indictment of an attorney an architect and twelve officials of labor organizations

BIG FIGHT BUT 3 WEEKS AWAY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, June 11.—Three weeks from today Georges Carpentier and Jack Dempsey will crawl through the ropes at Jersey City to stage "the battle of the century."

The time will fly fast and the big battle will be over, almost before we realize it, yet the coming weeks will drag for the rival fighters. Why? Because they are about to enter the home stretch of training and the daily routine will pall on them long before July 2 arrives.

Fact of the matter is, Jack and Georges are ready now for the fight. They could go into the ring today or Monday if necessary. Hence the twenty long days ahead of them hold forth only promises of uninteresting careful work.

With the exception of a cut over his right eye that will be healed so that he may resume boxing in earnest the first of next, Dempsey is fit to tackle anything from a buzz saw to an express train. His big care from now on will be not to go over the level of fine condition and start down the other side as he did before the Brennan fight

Carpentier too, is in excellent shape. The writer was included in a small crowd that watched him work out yesterday and there is not the shadow of a doubt about his physical condition. He perspires easily, his breathing is regular and freer than it was a week or so ago when he was suffering from a very slight cold in the head. His skin takes on that pink, healthy glow and he had a slight coating of tan Unlike Dempsey the French champion does not turn brown under the sun, and when they get into the ring together there will be a striking contrast between them. Carpentier will be the nimble, pink-skinned Adonis. Dempsey will be the personification of a grizzly bear.

Beginning next week, according to Manager Descamps, Carpentier is to enjoy even more privacy than ever, though the two a week visiting days for the members of the press will not be altered. Special guards will be placed in the pastures at Matthews farm to keep intruders from approaching near enough to interfere with Georges's workouts on days when he works in private. Fact is, he is going to do a lot of boxing And he wants as much peace and quiet during the remainder of his training period as possible Descamps intends to see to it that Georges gets what he wants.

CORBETT VISITS GEORGES'S CAMP

And Is Impressed by Frenchman's Speed and Wonderful Right Hand —Not So Rugged as Dempsey.

By James J. Corbett, former world's heavyweight champion (Copyright 1921 by International News Service.)

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Manhasset, L. I., June 11.—"Georges is expecting you, Mr. Corbett, come right in. You'll find him over there in the yard."

With this pleasant greeting from Trainer Gus Wilson, I invaded Carpentier's training camp Friday and watched him box in private for the first time.

I found the French champion lolling on the lawn in front of his cozy quarters with Joe Jeanette, Paul Journee and Italian Joe Gans. I sat down and talked with them for a time as the hour for training had not arrived.

Georges's sparring partners, with the exception of Jeannette knew me, for they had been told I was coming. Jeannette was not wise to it and he did not recognize me with a pair of heavy rimmed glasses on.

"Don't quite make me, eh Joe?" I asked. "Maybe you'll remember who was the champion croquet player of Harlem at one time. Does that tip you off?"

Joe sat and looked hard but Carpentier could wait no longer.

"Oh, Joe," he said, "you should know Jim Corbett, yes?"

And the laugh was on Joe.

Carpentier told me of his training routine and later went through his regular program, just as he does in private. I was very much impressed and consider it quite a compliment, because first of all Georges is a fellow who hates to work in public. I know how he feels about it. If I was working in France for a fight like that July 2, I would feel the same way.

When 3 o'clock arrived Georges skipped nimbly into the house and got into his working togs. He came out dressed in ring attire and a long bath robe and we all walked back to the barn. There he took off his robe and I saw him stripped for action for the first time. I was agreeably surprised at everything I saw.

Georges is built like the ideal athlete. His shoulder, arm and leg development is wonderful. He is not a Hercules. Instead he is built like a fine thoroughbred horse. He is nothing like Dempsey who is bigger and more rugged. This fellow Carpentier is built for speed and believe me he has it.

Georges punched the bag, skipped the rope, worked on the pulleys, slugged the heavy bag, went through gymnastic stunts and boxed with Journee, Jeannette and Gans. He went after his work with a good will and worked up a perspiration that made his skin glow.

Of course, I know that a man can't always cut loose and hurt his sparring partners. He wouldn't have them long if he did. And Georges didn't knock anybody out or down. But he showed me a world of speed, a good head and as fast a right hand as I have ever seen in the heavy weight division. In fact, he has one of the snappiest right hands the heavyweight class has ever known.

I was especially impressed with the way he used his right and the manner in which he worked up to it, feinting around and never giving a clue in advance that would tip you off when you might expect him to let it fly.

Carpentier is not the type of a boxer that I was. I understand his style thoroughly but it is entirely different from the style I used. In fact Carpentier is more aggressive than I was. When he cuts loose he is quick, snappy and a good shocker. Of course he did no defensive work while I was there because he was working comparatively to get rough exercise and did not try to rest himself. He never stopped going for at least forty solid minutes except to mop off his forehead. In boxing with Journee and Jeannette he worked like a Trojan and when he stopped he did so with good judgment.

FRENCH EXPERTS PICK CARPENTIER

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, June 11.—Here are some opinions of Paris sporting critics on the Carpentier-Dempsey fight:

Henri Desgrange, director of the daily sporting newspaper L'Auto—"Carpentier will win. I say this not because I am a Frenchman, but because Carpentier is too fast; too scientific. He will not receive a scratch on his face. His victories have always been impressive. He is the real type of boxing. Dempsey has a fine record but he is not built of the same stuff as Corbett, Fitzsimmons or Jeffries."

Georges Casella, sporting editor of Comoedia—"I think Carpentier will win but it will not be an easy victory. Dempsey is a dangerous adversary."

H. Bert, sporting editor of La Victoire—"I pick Carpentier. Dempsey has done practically nothing since he started to box. He will not whip Willard. Carpentier has a crush kind of victories in every class since he started to box."
